Put on Your Thinking Cap
and take up the question of pure drugs. Do you think a pharmacist can be too careful in putting up prescriptions? Do you agree with us that purity of the ingredients is all-important? And what about their freshness and quality? We watch all the little details and our prescriptionist is a graduated pharmacist. You can rely upon us.

BEFORE THE R. R. COMMISSION

S. & S. DEMANDS PAYMENT IN ADVANCE, WHICH CAUSES KICK.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 22.—Because it has refused to accept freight from the Central of Georgia railroad at Statesboro for transshipment to points on its own line, without payment of all its own share of freight charges in advance, the Savannah and Statesboro railroad, of which J. Randolph Anderson, of Savannah, is president, has been called upon the carpet of the state railroad commission and will on next Wednesday tell its side of the case which the commission has put down on the calendar. The matter originates from two individuals, who claim their freight shipments are tied up by this demand. President Anderson, summoned to appear, called on the commission at the capitol Saturday.

RIOT IN BUZZARD ROOST.

Beer Bottle and a Knife Make Blood Flow Freely.

There was high life down in "Buzzard Roost," a colored suburb of Statesboro, Sunday afternoon, and plenty of blood followed the wielding of empty bottles and a knife.

Josie Cox and Willie Lucas were the defendants in Acting Mayor Parrish's court Monday morning, and besides a fine of $15 and $10 respectively, they were bound over to the city court on a charge of riot.

Just what started the disagreement between those two women and Beckie Lee, was not made apparent in the trial of the case, but it was shown that they went together to Beckie's house, and that she lashed Willie across the head with a bottle until it broke and until Willie, according to her own admission, "felt mighty foolish."

About this stage of the game Josie waltzed in with an open knife, and when Beckie had secured another bottle as a weapon, Josie proceeded to cut fresh meat at a savage rate.

An inventory showed that Beckie received four knife wounds, and Josie's head was "bussed wide open" across the top.

According to the testimony there was quite a little "perfume" language in circulation about that time.

In the Hour of Misfortune.
It is in the hour of misfortune, when life's pathway is dark and dreary, when we have made some grave mistake that has brought sorrow and distress to ourselves, relatives and friends; when our cup seems running over; and we are shunned by those from whom words of encouragement and advice would be of so much worth and gladly welcomed, that we are left to fight our battles alone. The unfair portion of it all is that many of those who know the bitterness of the lonely fight are no more guilty than our daily associates and friends, except that they have committed the unpardonable sin of being found out.

Let us bear this in mind when we see a former associate in distress and remember that to err is human and that to refuse to assist the fallen is not divine.

Registration Books to Open.

To the Voters of Bulloch County: In regard to the inquiry being made concerning the registration books, they will be open in Statesboro from Feb. 14 until April 5, as the law directs.

I would have carried them around and given the people an opportunity to register, but as the law does not authorize it, I will keep them open in Statesboro as the law directs.

Will say to my worthy opponents and other candidates for the different offices, to stir up the pure mind of the voters and insist that they come forward and register and take part in the election and be fellow helpers in the election.

Hoping this notice is sufficient and satisfactory to the general public, and that each one will take notice and come and register.

I think this the best way, boys, as it will be taking no advantage of any candidate in handling the registration books.

Wishing you much success in your undertakings, I am,
Your unworthy servant,
S. C. ALLEN.

Are You Honest?

With your land when for the sake of saving a few dollars you use a fertilizer whose only recommendation is its analysis. It requires no special knowledge to mix materials to analyses. The value of a fertilizer lies in the materials used, so as not to over feed the plant at one time and starve at another. This is why Royster brands are so popular. Every ingredient has its particular work to do. Twenty-five years experience in making goods for Southern crops has enabled us to know what is required.

Entered as second class matter March 23, 1892, at the postoffice at Batesboro, Ga., under the Act of Congress, March 3, 1879.

It's a per zulu, remarks the Pittsburg Dispatch, that can't be broken for a personal friend.

It is the fate of every industrial man, laments the Columbia State, to support one or two hookworm victims.

About fifty years ago, recalls the Christian Register, Horace Greeley described a set of men and women who wanted to create a different world to live in the world as it is.

There are two sides to every story, asserts the Atchafalpa Globe. And in every community every citizen represents a story. It is better to take sides and be hated by one crowd and admired by the other, or to be neutral and be hated by both sides?

Says the St. John Telegraph: Sir Wilfrid believes we can get along very well without a Canadian attaché at Washington, D. C., from time to time. Ambassador Bryce takes no step in negotiating affecting Canada without consulting Ottawa, the other way. Which shows how much improvement there has been within the last few years.

A French physician has been writing in one of the Paris papers about a cure for colds which, he says, is very old, but which a long time ago fell into disuse and was practically forgotten. It is a very simple remedy, explains the Pathfinder, the only requirement being that the patient refrain from all liquids for the period of from twenty-four to forty-eight hours. A spoonful of tea or coffee may be taken at meals and a small glass of water at bedtime, if thirst is very great. But it is much better to do without all liquids entirely, if possible. It is not necessary, says the physician, to remain indoors while the cure is being tried—in fact, he recommends that the patient get out of doors and breathe the fresh air. He says that the "dry cure" is infallible.

Like all other adjectives, insists the Pittsburg Dispatch, the word "modern" means different things in different places and at different times. It is impossible to find an adjective that always means the same. The word "modern" is a good instance. Take it in the case of "a modern hotel," for instance. Let us see what a modern hotel means in various places. In New York a modern hotel is one with an aeroplane on the roof. In Chicago, it is a hotel where a man can pay $50 for a room if he wants to. In Omaha, it is a hotel with telephones and running water in each room. In Goshen, Indiana, it is a hotel with individual towels for each guest. In the interior of Arkansas it is a hotel where all the guests do not have to sleep in the same room. In London it is a hotel with bath tubs. In Paris it is a hotel with an elevator. In Italy it is a hotel whose bugs can only trace their ancestry back fifty generations in the same room.

Alas for the lost picturesqueness of English literary history as our own generation rewrites it! exclaims the New York Evening Post. And yet even the new truth has its compensations. Perhaps, when the Puritanical reader now turns to Fielding's novels, he will the more enjoy "Tom Jones" because he may be sure that his hero is far from being an exact double of the author. When he reads "America," such a reader should be juster than formerly to Fielding in realizing that Captain Williams' boasts and the creator of his mischievous weakness are not always one and the same person.

So, too, it is impossible not to give more credit to Byron and to Poe's creative powers and gifts of imagination as we differentiate them more and more, as poets, from their protagonists. On the whole, we are obliged to those who have so rudely told us the virtuous truth about our men of letters. After all, it may be strictly necessary that a great novelist or a great poet should be too big a fool too mighty a sinner, or too pitiful a degenerate.

LIBEL CASE DISMISSED.

The New York World Held Calumnies of Standing Government.

New York City.—The indictment against the Press Publishing Company, publishers of the New York World, charging Joseph Pulitzer and others with libel against Theodore Roosevelt, President Taft and others, was quashed in the United States district court Judge Hough called the matter upon which the indictment rested was not sufficient in authority, or in other words, that the court had no jurisdiction.

MANEUVERS TO BE REPEATED

Regulars and National Guard to Camp Together.

Chickamauga Is One of the Summer Camps Included in the Plans of the War Department.

Washington, D. C.—Last year's joint maneuvers of the regular army and National Guard will be repeated during the summer, according to present plans of the war department, and asking them to notify the commission as promptly as possible whether or not they will take command this year.

Some thirty replies already received indicate that the demand for convicts for the summer camps is much greater than last year, and it is more than probable that the commission will have to hold each county down strictly to its legal apportionment.

Twenty-four of these thirty counties which are now working state convicts not only want to retain them, but want more than the new law in almost every instance there is request for an increased number.

Suggestion of the Doctors.

The resolution adopted by the physicians, in convention here last Wednesday, published in another column, is a sensible one. Let it be hoped that from this start a reform may be commenced along the lines suggested.

It is too frequently the rule in cases of capital importance that physicians employed by opposing sides, are contradictory, and to a large extent unreliable. A physician employed as an expert to assist in the defense of one guilty of a crime, to a large extent, assumes the condition of the defendant—he is said to testify to such facts only as will be of value to the accused, and he naturally combats with his best skill the attempts of the opposing side to extract such facts as might be injurious to his client. To the same extent, an expert employed by the prosecution is easily biased in his testimony. While neither may testify to a false condition, there is often such an apparent lack of harmony in their testimony that a lay mind is confused rather than enlightened by it, while possibly a reasonable explanation attaches to the contention of both experts.

As proposed by the physicians' resolutum, an expert employed by the state should be a disinterested witness, giving the facts as they exist, without coloring or prejudice to either side. If this would be possible without such experts unintentionally assuming a theory and warping their testimony to prove the correctness of it, much help would be rendered the courts in arriving at correct verdicts in cases where expert medical knowledge is in demand.

A certain amount of pleasure is necessary for the relaxation of mind and body, but a certain amount of work is just as necessary for the appreciation of pleasure.

The Month of Valentines.

Next to Christmas Day, the 14th of February is, perhaps, dearest to the hearts of all youth. The custom of sending and receiving valentines is one that does not grow old, though there are indeed few who know the origin of the custom.

It is said that a fact in natural history, to wit, that birds in Southern Europe pair about the middle of February, is the actual origin of the association of sentiment with this date. There is no doubt that the custom of sending valentines can be traced in origin to a custom among the ancient Romans. At a feast of Lupercalia, which was held on Feb. 15 in honor of the great god Pan, deriving its name from the place where it was held, the Lupercal—so called because it was supposed to be the spot where the four-footed foster mother of Romulus and Remus administered nourishment to the little waifs—the names of all virgin daughters of Rome were put into a box, and drawn therefrom by the young men. Each youth was bound to offer a gift to the maiden who fell to his lot, and to make her his partner during the time of the feast. No doubt this custom led to the formation of many life partnerships, which was undoubtedly what its practical originators desired. How this very secular custom became allied to the name of a saint is another matter entirely.

St. Valentine was a bishop of Rome during the 3rd century. He is reported to have been a man of most amiable nature and remarkable gifts of eloquence, so that he was very successful in converting the pagan Romans to Christianity. For this reason he incurred the displeasure of the Emperor Marcus Aurelius Claudius, who hated and persecuted the little Christian band, and he was martyred by order of that ruler, first beaten with clubs and then beheaded. The date of his death was Feb. 14, 270. Pope Julius erected a church to this worthy martyr's memory, and the gate leading to it, which is now the Porta del Popolo, was known for several centuries as Porta Valentini. It is probable that the connection of the name came from a coincidence in date only. When Saint Valentine came to be placed in the calendar, his name was given to the day of his death, and this was made a festival to offset that of Lupercalia, on the 15th.

A Tip to Farmers.

There is a suggestion contained in a short item taken from the Savannah Press, which it is believed should be of value to some of our farmer friends. It is that relative to the demand by a Savannah broom factory for broom corn.

Now, it may be that there is some obstacle in the way of a profitable production of that crop in this section, but if so, it is apparent that the market value of the broom corn is an inducement to study to overcome that obstacle. There does not seem to be any reason why broom corn cannot be grown here as easily as china corn or sorghum, which grows to perfection with little attention. At any rate, the price of $100 per ton for good straw, makes the attempt worth while, and we would suggest that some of our friends write to Mr. Kulman and secure some seed for planting, as well as some literature on the culture of the corn.

In Memoriam.

On the night of Dec. 12, 1909, the angel of death called Frank Lawrence to go up higher, making our hearts sad and leaving a vacancy in our community which can never more be filled.

His father having died before he could list his name, and he being the only child of his widowed mother, Frank early assumed the responsibilities of manhood, apprehending the wishes of his mother, and performing his duty toward her faithfully and well until about four weeks before his death when a complicated attack of typhoid fever claimed him as its victim.

Though a good physician and nurse were employed, his mother never left his bedside during his four weeks of illness. Everything that love and science could suggest was done for his recovery, but, alas! his disease was of such a nature as to baffle all human aid.

His death occurred at Southwell, Bryan county, at 6 o'clock Sunday night, and his remains were brought to his old home near Blitch Monday night and were interred in the old church yard at Union Tuesday morning, Dec. 14. Rev. Hardee Everett funeralized him in the presence of a host of relatives and friends, six of whom accompanied the corpse from Southwell. In tender, loving words Mr. Everett paid a touching tribute to his young friend, who was transplanted to a higher world just in the bloom of manhood.

Frank's 21st birthday passed during his illness, just two weeks before the final summons came, and in the feebleness of human conception we often find ourselves pondering the question: "Why was a life with a future so bright and promising taken away so soon?" But when we reflect that "God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform," and realize, too, that in His wisdom He doeth all things well, we can more readily resign ourselves in humble submission to His divine will, being assured that some day we'll understand.

Frank had many shining traits of character which endeared him to all with whom he came in contact. Being perfectly honest and truthful and ever loyal to his family and friends, he very naturally became a great favorite with his associates, who should strive to emulate the noble examples he left them.

To his mother and other bereaved ones we extend our deepest sympathy, and trust that they may find consolation in the following comforting lines:

There is no death! The stars go down To rise upon some fairer shore,
And bright in heaven's jeweled crown, They shine forevermore.

The granite rocks disgorge him To feed the hungry moths they bear,
The forest leaves drink daily life From out the willows air.

There is no death! The leaves may fall As flowers may fade and pass away,
They only wait, through wintry hours, The coming of May-day.

There is no death! An angel form Walks o'er the earth with silent tread,
He bears our best loved ones away And then we call them dead!

He leaves our hearts all desolate; He plucks our fairest, sweetest flowers;
Transplanting into bliss, they now Adorn immortal bowers.

Where'er he goes a smile too bright, Or heart too pure for taint or vice,
He bears it to that land of light, To dwell with Him in Paradise!

That bird-like voice, whose joyous notes, Made glad these scenes of sin and strife,
Sings now an everlasting song Around the tree of life!

And ever near us, though unseen, The dear immortal spirits tread,
For all the boundless universe As life! There is no dead.
